

“Building the Kingdom of God from within and for the Community”

College Hill Community Church (PCUSA) Dayton, OH., and the Miami Valley Presbytery's Colombia Partnership Network are proud to present Dr. Laurenth Hernández Bolívar, elder and member of the Presbyterian Church of Cartagena, Colombia.

What does it look like to spread the Gospel of Jesus Christ by being doers of the Word and meeting the needs of our neighbors? What might happen if we stop worrying about what we lack, and boldly answer the call to take whatever we do have and step out in faith – trusting that God will use it and us to bear much fruit?

Dr. Hernández will share the social, economic and political context in which La Iglesia Presbiteriana de Cartagena does ministry, providing examples of ways the church spreads the Good News of Jesus Christ through meaningful action in their community. She will describe their model of evangelism through action which includes: recognizing needs and showing up wherever Good News is needed; being humbly present and suffering with those who are hurting and oppressed; and calling one another into creative collaboration in the transformative work of building the Kingdom of God here on Earth.

Through words, images, and music, we will learn about the Presbyterian Church of Cartagena's ministries that meet the needs of three particular groups: children, youth and young adults, and families/the surrounding community. The evening concludes with a video presentation of a spirit-filled musical performance by MAJUP, the youth praise ministry of the Presbyterian Church of Cartagena.

Started just two years ago with nothing more than a piano and a vision, MAJUP is a vibrant example of successful ministry with youth, and a powerful testament to how God provides what is lacking when we commit to taking the first step with whatever we have. College Hill Community Church has been developing its own youth music ministry based on the MAJUP model. Join us!
